Houston Attorney with an Open Arms Policy

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: April 3, 2017

HOUSTON, TX—After Annie Scott became licensed as an attorney, her ambitions for law practice led her to the Prosecutor’s office. It was in her role as Cameron County’s Assistant District Attorney that she encountered case after case of individuals who had fallen victim to stiffer sentencing and unfair plea deals. Many underprivileged are serving sentences they did not deserve simply because they couldn’t afford adequate counsel.

In America, in theory and by definition, rights are inalienable. All should be granted equal consideration under the law, regardless of race, creed, class, culture, sexual orientation, gender, gender status, or national origin. The underprivileged had just as much right to a fair and impartial justice system as those with more disposable income. Annie Scott found it disturbing that so many lacked access to or simply could not afford quality, legal representation. This prompted a change in her career goals.

In an effort to make quality legal representation accessible and affordable, Annie Scott decided to part from the system she felt only saw people as docket numbers. She launched The Law Office of Annie Scott in 2010, serving those in Houston, TX and the surrounding counties.

And if they are sitting in ICE detention, are seeking a name change, or are fighting for transgender rights, I have an open door policy and will welcome them with open arms.”
